Beauty, Utility and Durability!

THE public are respectfully informed that the subscriber has finally concluded to remain in this city some length of time, in order to afford an ample opportunity to residents of having their houses or parts thereof, plainly painted or ornamented as may best suit their taste. The work is executed with despatch, either in oil or water colours, in exact imitation of paper hangings or according to any given design.

The superiority of this mode of decorating apartments in preference to paper hangings lies chiefly in its permanency, as it will bear cleansing by washing, and the choice of colours, patterns, landscapes, etc. etc. suitable to the size and situation of the apartment.

The expense is not more than that of papering and renewable in any manner most suitable.

Miscellany.

[BY REQUEST.]

From the Cincinnati Gazette.

FAIR Laws for 1820.

Revolving time has once more ushered in the eventful period of female privilege. Leap year has again returned—joy beams from every eye—smiles dance in quick succession on the ruby lips—and every pulse beats with expectation.

In older communities than our own, three annual suns may hide their effulgence far in the western wave and dull uniformity still hold her place: society changes not with the fleeting moments; and what was applicable yesterday is so to-day, and will be so to-morrow: Far different is the case in this western Emporium—so rapidly is our city progressing—so numerous the emigrants and so various their habits and modes of thinking, that every day presents a different aspect: consequently, the laws which governed the community of damsels in the Leap year of 1816, have imperiously required revision and amendment for 1820. The board of female censors for the city of Cincinnati, have therefore, in conformity with the powers vested in them, proceeded to an examination of the same, and after much labor have agreed upon the promulgation of the following digest for the ensuing year; a strict observance of which they beg most earnestly to enjoin upon all lasses between 1 and 30, under penalty of final condemnation to a state of single blessedness.

1. No retrenchment of expenditures shall be made, and in all cases expensive foreign articles shall have the preference over cheap domestic ones.

2. No marriage shall be solemnized until the mansion is furnished in the most elegant style our market will permit.

3. The practice of coqueting is at all times admissible among females.

4. No lady shall pride herself upon having discarded more than seven lovers per annum.

5. After an engagement a lady shall not receive the particular attentions of more than four gentlemen at the same time.

6. No lady shall boast of having made a conquest, until the gentleman shall have bowed three several times and waited on her once from church.

7. No lady shall refuse a gentleman more than three times, provided she be disengaged.

8. A lady shall invariably be estimated by the number of her conquests.

9. A lady may at all times break off an engagement, provided a more dashing fellow proffers his hand.

10. No lady when solicited by the gentlemen shall refuse to join in playing "Blind man's buff—Thimble—Stir the mush," &c. &c. and on all occasions such rational amusements should be preferred to social and literary conversation.

11. No lady shall dance at any Cotillion party more than 24 times, nor remain at said party more than ten hours.

12. Female sojourners are most respectfully invited to conform to the above regulations.

The Board beg leave to remark that notwithstanding the depreciated state of our currency, and the pressure of the times generally, behind which so many bachelors have entrenched themselves, they are strongly inclined to believe that the present will be a fruitful year of conquests and marriages, and they trust when it is recollected that three tedious years must roll away, before the return of another golden opportunity, no exertions will be spared to thin the ranks of that most unprofitable race—the unmarried Gentlemen

Given under our fair hands at our council chamber, this first day of February, 1820.

From the Paris Journal des Debats.

Medical Science—A lady, about forty years of age, who lives at the corner of one of the streets in Paris, was struck early in the month with apoplexy. M. Lavalette, the physician, was called in, and he restored her to life, by bleeding in a jugular vein, & stimulating the blood to flow abundantly by the application of a common needle to the exterior part of the vein and the adjoining nerves. It is thus shewn, that the mechanical stimulant is able to revive nervous sensibility and by creating a kind of peristaltic motion, to deduce from the arteries a great quantity of blood. There is also another instance of the efficacy of this application in the case of a M. Chatelin, a linen merchant, who had also been restored to existence under similar circumstances. It is trusted that this discovery will be generally beneficial.

FOR THE GAZETTE.

TO WILLIAM COBBETT.

All hail to thee Cobbett—great seedsman* all hail,
Ruta Baga wherever thou goest,
The Devil rich harvests shall reap without fail,
From the seeds of wild faction thou sowest.

Pseudo Royalist, Federalist, Democrat, Quid,
Political Proteus, still changing;
Prompt minion of evil at Lucifer's bid,
The peace of a nation deranging.

Now loathing TOM PAINE, as perditions true heir,
Now his mem'ry with laurels entwining;
Whose carcase you once doom'd to rot in the air,
Now in London most piously shrining.

The "strong hempen collar,‖" bequeath'd to your Paine,
Lest his blood should pollute the states headsman,
On your candor and judgment remains a foul stain,
'Twas a "radical" error great seedsman.

High priest of detraction, at thy great command,
At thy altars whole hetacombs bleed,
The wisest, the purest, the best of the land,
Thy cravings insatiate to feed.

Thou mammoth reformist, lest Satan should lurk,
Whilst thou'rt busy reforming the nation,
Methinks 'twere a task more important to work,
Great Cobbett, thy own reformation.

Though on us thy Billinsgate thou hast let loose,
Thy praise is alone defamation:
Yet true to thyself thou'lt soon turn to thy use
And int'rest, a full recantation.

If the proverb be true that we reap what we sow,
If "death and the doctor" dont rob it;
Should the germs of sedition you've husbanded grow,
A "collar" thoul't grace gentle Cobbett.

'Tis granted dame England's far gone in decline,
Her vitals her blood-suckers bribing;
But the remedy's worse than disease, I opine,
Of the Atheist doctor's prescribing.

Great notorious, farewell, may the same tomb enclose,
When thy labours Herculean surcease,
Thy bones with thy Paine's, only fit to repose,
"Par nobile fratrum," in peace.

* All the world has been informed, for so immeasurable a space does this great man fill, in his own conceit, that he ever informs the whole world of his most trifling concerns, that he came to this country to sell Ruta Baga, or Swedish Turnip Seeds. But he has not been quite so candid in declaring that doubtless a secondary object, was the recovery of some $5000 he had to pay for the indulgence of his wit in cracking a few jokes at the expense of the professional and private character of Dr. Rush, ycleped by a Philadelphia Jury, which brought him to his 'wits end,' a foul and infamous libel. His turnip seeds he did sell, but the $5000 the State for sundry good reasons did not refund. Query—can it be possible that the great, magnanimous, consistent, pure and disinterested mind of this philantropic cosmopolite, could be so chagrined at this paltry disappointment as to produce that deluge of Billingsgate he has poured upon this unfortunate country, for refusing a mausoleum and co'osal statue to the impious author of the Age of Reason—the daring calumniator of our beloved Washington! If the $5000 be unappropriated, I would propose that it be appropriated to the erection of a colossal statue, not of Paine, but Cobbett himself, and to be perfectly characteristic of its great prototype, that it be cast of SOLID BRASS, bearing in the dexter, as it was a dextrous manoeuvre to serve his then political views, his unequalled biography of this same Paine, and in the left, as a left-handed sort of business, his pathetic and most consistent eulogy on presenting the bones of this 'noble of nature' to the London mob.

§ Oh lamentable mutability of human opinion, when not even the great, the adamantine mind of the thrice renowned Cobbett is exempted from preposterous versatility. Look upon this picture, and on this can it be conceived by 'minds of common mould,' that he who, as he has himself so feelingly, so triumphantly described, stole 'at the very witching time of night when church yards yawn,' to the sequestered grave, and wrenched from their silent repose the bones of this 'noble of nature,' to bear them in holy pilgrimage across the ocean that he might erect 'a colossal statue to his memory' and give him to whom he had urst bequeathed a halter 'a funeral 20 miles long,' could ever have declared that it was perfectly immaterial whether his, Paine's carcase is at last to be suffered to rot on the earth or to be dried in the air. 'Like Judas' said Mr. Cobbett, 'he will be remembered by posterity; men will learn to express all that is base, malignant, treacherous, unnatural and blasphemous, by the single monosyllable, Paine!'

‖ "Item. To Tom Paine, the author of common sense, Rights of Man, Age of Reason, and a letter to General Washington—I bequeath a strong hempen collar as the only legacy I can think of that is worthy of him, as well as but adequate to render his death in some measure as infamous as his life, and I do hereby direct, and order my executors to send it to him with my compliments and request that he would make use of it without delay, that the national razor may not be disgraced by the head of such a monster." These who are curious to ascertain the extent of invenomed malice to which such a heart as Cobbett's may be carried, will be amply satisfied by a perusal of his works, in the fifth volume of which, may be found the preceding will, from which I have quoted the above item, as an incontestible proof of the consistency and sincerity of his mind. Well may he exclaim in the bitterness of his soul, 'oh that mine enemy had written a book.' Or with lady Macbeth 'is there not rain enough in the sweet heavens to wash these pages white as snow.'

MISSOURI QUESTION.

Mr. Lowrie, Senator from Pennsylvania, in the conclusion of his speech, thus expresses himself.

"I will not, sir, pursue this question any farther; but before I set down, permit me to advert to some expressions which have fallen from gentleman from Virginia, (Mr. Barbour,) the other day told us, that this subject will be an ignited spark, which, communicated to an immense mass of combustion, will produce an explosion that will shake the union to its centre. The gentleman from Georgia, (Mr. Walker) tells us, that he thinks he hears the thunders roll, he sees the father arrayed against the son, and the brother drawing the bloody sword out of the bosom of the brother! Mr. President, I will not now detain the senate, by enquiring which of the states these combustible materials are, or by pointing out the field on which the battle will be fought. Before that bill leaves your table, if no other gentleman takes up this part of the subject, I may perhaps take the liberty of looking at it a little more in detail; not. sir, as a member from Pennsylvania, but as one of the representatives from the whole of the United states. At present, however, I will only observe, that I also believe, we are drawing towards a very serious crisis; to save us from which all the wisdom of the present congress, as well as the blessing of the Almighty, will be necessary. But, sir, if the alternative be, as the gentlemen thus broadly intimate, a dissolution of this union, or the extension of slavery over the whole western country, I, for one, will choose the former. I do not say this lightly; I am aware that the idea is a dreadful one. The choice is a dreadful one. Either side of the alternative fills my mind with horror. I have not, however, yet despaired of the republic. And unless the melancholy result convinces me to the contrary, I must still believe, that we are able to dispose of this distracting question so as to satisfy the reasonable expectations of the people of the U. States."

Report on the Currency, &c.

The long expected Report of the Secretary of the Treasury, in pursuance of a resolve of the house of representatives, passed at the close of the last session, is received. It occupies 73 pages, besides the tabular statements accompanying it. We have only had time to discover the nature of Mr. Secretary Crawford's views on the currency Question, from the following concluding paragraph of the Report.

"It is then believed that the evils which are felt in those sections of the Union where the distress is most general, will not be extensively relieved by the establishment of a national currency.—The sufferings which have been produced by the efforts that have been made to resume and to continue specie payments have been great. They are not terminated, and must continue until the value of property, and the price of labor, shall assume that relation to the precious metals which our wealth and industry, compared with those of other states, shall enable us to retain.

Until this shall be effected, an abortive attempt, by the substitution of a paper currency, to arrest the evils we are suffering, will produce the most distressing consequences. The sufferings that are passed will in such an event, recur with additional violence, and the nation will again find itself in the situation which it held at the moment when specie payments were resumed."

COMMODORE OLIVER H. PERRY.

The Hon. John Randolph, introduced on Tuesday, a resolution in Congress to make provisions for the Wife and Family of our late, lamented Hero, Commodore Oliver Hazard Perry, and to educate his children. The few remarks from Mr R. which accompany the resolution, and its prompt adoption by the House, reflect equal honor upon that body and the individual. A Committee will report on the subject, and if any debate can be consequent, we shall fearlessly promise ourselves and our readers, the luxury of listening to an appeal from that gentleman's brilliant and alluring eloquence, which this theme cannot fail to elicit.

Mr. Lowndes offered the following resolution for consideration.

Resolved, That the committee on naval affairs be instructed to enquire into the expediency of extending to the widow of Capt. Oliver H. Perry the provisions which is now made by law for the widows and children of naval officers who die from wounds received in action.

Mr. L. observed that it was conceived that the family of Commodore Perry was embraced by the existing laws which provide for pensions, as it was not to be supposed that the generosity or magnanimity of congress did not intend to comprehend such a case; but as this appeared to be doubted, he had deemed it proper to propose the enquiry which he had submitted.

The resolution was adopted mem. con.

Mr. Randolph rose to offer a motion. He believed it would be very difficult for any member of the House—certainly it was not possible for him—to keep pace with the honorable gentleman from South Carolina, (Mr. Lowndes) in the race of honour and public utility. That gentleman had, by the motion which had been adopted, anticipated him, in part, a position which he (Mr. R.) had intended on this particular day, for reasons which would suggest themselves to the mind of every one, to offer to the House. When he had this morning heard the tower guns announcing the return of the birth day of Washington, Mr. R. said the thought had came across his mind that, if this question was put to those who have honor in their mouths & money in their pockets, it would be curious to see how it would be received. His purpose was, Mr. R. stated, to make a motion in relation to the wife and children of Oliver H. Perry. It was his opinion, whether correct or not, that the country owed more to that man, in its late contest with Great Britain, than to any other whatever, with the exception of Isaac Hull—that man who had first broken the steel plate, the curia of British invincibility. He had frequently heard persons of that country speak in terms of admiration of the atchievement of Captain Hull, in his escape from an enemy's fleet in the Constitution frigate of the admirable seamanship which he had displayed—of his professional skill; but he had never heard any of them speak with satisfaction of his atchievement with the Guerriere, which had carried her name in defiance, emblazoned in large letters on her sails. That was an event on which they were generally silent. Mr. R. believed that Old England would consent that forty Packenhams, with all their legions, should have been buried in the alluvial lands of the Mississippi, to take back the single action of the Guerriere; because that action had done more than any thing else to open the eyes of Europe. It was not inferior in lustre to any event in her history, except only that of La Hougue, under admiral Russel. Next in glory to the victory over the Guerriere, was that on Lake Erie by the gallant Perry. One had shewn the way to victory with single ships, the other with fleets. Shall we suffer his family to melt up the plate that was given to him by his countrymen, in compliment to his gallantry, to buy bread? He would say no more, but at once offer the following resolution:

Resolved, That a provision be made by law for the support of the family of the late Oliver Hazard Perry, Esq. of the United States' Navy, and for the education of his children.

Mr. Lowndes concurred with great cordiality in Mr. Randolph's resolution. In its fullest force he felt the sentiment of gratitude to the man who had first taught his country to hope for victory by fleets, as well as by single ships; and it was only because he had supposed that the house would not at this time give its approbation to a proposition such as Mr. Randolph had offered, that he had contented himself with the very inferior one which he had submitted.

Mr Hazard, of Rhode Island, did not rise to say much on a subject, which he said he could scarcely trust himself to speak on at all. But he rose to offer his thanks to the gentleman from Virginia and the gentleman from South Carolina, in behalf of the name of Commodore Perry—to thank them in behalf of the state which gave him birth; to thank them in the name of his amiable widow; to thank them in the name of their common country.

The resolution was adopted; and

On motion of Mr. Randolph, a committee of three was appointed to bring in a bill in pursuance thereto.

SAVANNAH, Feb. 11.

Captain Clark of the sloop Sailor's Rights, arrived last evening, from the coast of Florida, on a wrecking voyage. He informs us, that while on the coast of Florida, on the 6th inst. he was attacked by a number of Indians and negroes; and with difficulty escaped—that he afterwards understood that the attack was made in consequence of the news having reached that country, that the Floridas had been positively ceded to the United States; and that the intention of the Indians and negroes was to commit all the depredations they could against the Americans. Captain C. also understood that a number of these desperadoes have been for some time committing many outrages; and that they would continue so to do until they were driven off. Their intention was then, to embark for the British West Indies. This information was given to Captain C by a deserter from that party who was compelled to give himself up from long thirst and hunger. We give this, as we get it, without vouching for its correctness.

The following elegant production is from the pen of Paul Allen, esq. as it appeared in his paper on Christmas day.

"Eighteen hundred and nineteen years have rolled over our heads, since the shepherds sleeping on the plains of Judea, surrounded by their snowy flocks, were disturbed by the appearance of an unusual star, whose beams twinkled upon their slumbers. Lost in astonishment, and with palpitating hearts, they beheld the approach of the radient stranger, amongst the heavenly constellations——Brightening in splendour, the celestial harbinger advanced until they were lost amidst the blaze of glory, so suddenly kindled up amongst the shadows of the night. We may now conceive of a state of breathless anxiety, and of palpitating fear. They gaze upon the countenances of each other, so distinctly rendered visible by the beams of this Heaven created lamp, and await with awful forebodings the accomplishment of this miracle. Escape is in vain—a supernatural power is advancing, as is made evident to their senses by the streaming effulgence with which they are surrounded. The clouds all radiant with this new-born lustre suddenly dissipate, and in the midst of the luminous serene, an angel is discovered whose ruddy cheeks expanding brows, and sparkling eyes, are but harbingers to this joyful intelligence from his lips:—'Fear not, for behold I bring you glad tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day, in the city of David, a Saviour, who is Christ the Lord; and this shall be a sign unto you; you shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes and lying in a manger.' A short silence ensued, while the bosoms of the shepherds so recently beating with alarms, were now subsiding into gentle tremors of delight, while their eyes began to glow with their wonted confidence the sounds of celestial harps are heard in the air; the shepherds are surrounded by strains of melody, but the shepherds themselves are not seen. Suddenly the cloud rendered luminous by the lustre, rolls away its silvery radience with a host of glorious spirits with countenances all beaming with heaven's own immortal youth, break upon the view, and the chorus is uttered, 'Glory to God in the highest, on earth peace and good will to all men.' And to whom were those glorious tidings announced by celestial lips, accompanied by so much pomp and so much melody? To our fallen and rebellious race, have been rendered these terms of salvation: angels were not of themselves of sufficient dignity to bring about a change so mighty; they are the mere harbingers of these glorious tidings; they point to the appearance of One still superior in dignity and in grandeur, to the 'babe in swaddling clothes,' and the star performs the office of a herald; it moves its celestial course before the eyes of the shepherds until it poured its full radiance upon the manger.

While the heart is dissolving under a sense of such divine mercy we must remember that those very skies, formerly illeminated by the beams of such divine lustre, those very plains that once echoed to the harps of descending angels are now rendered vocal by the praises offered to Mahomet; the place of our Saviour's nativity is profaned by the worship of an imposter. Let it be remembered also, with thanks of adoring gratitude to the great Father of all mercies, that it was reserved for America, at the time of this glorious display of divine munificence, a howling wilderness tenanted by savage beasts and still more savage men, at the distance of eighteen hundred and nineteen years, to send forth to those very skies and to those plains, to those very infidels that inhabit that place, that to them also a Saviour is born. Our messengers will repair to the very spot where these celestial harbingers were once seen, and on the same errand announce the birth place of a Redeemer.

The star that directed the step of the wise men of the east to the manger where our infant Redeemer slumbered, let it be noted, appeared to the poor shepherds of Judea. Wisdom and riches have both their consolations; but what consolation has the humble son of poverty in all his afflictions, in all his trials and sorrows, to learn he is befriended by the Saviour of the world! He himself participated in that poverty, and how great must be the reward of the righteous poor in Heaven, when the Son of God himself appears on earth in the garments of poverty! Fame, honour, and wealth, and the admiration of man, derogate from the grandeur of this mission. Let then the Christian who is suffering under the persecutions of the world, cast his eyes to Heaven, and feel his own dignity. Let him meditate on those things, and he may learn in his heart those glorious tidings, from the lips of attending angels, 'Unto you emphatically, unto you a Saviour is born, not indeed wrapt in swaddling clothes, not indeed, now lying in a manger." No—he is arrayed 'in all the brightness of the Father's glory;' he 'sits on His right hand, receiving the worship of Saints and Angels, and the spirits of just men now made perfect.' Tell us then ye proud potentates, kings, and emperors of the earth, has the humble Christian in the midst of his poverty, no consolation in his sufferings! Look towards Heaven, behold all this effulgence, and answer!

We will not degrade the majesty of this subject by distorting the analogy of the Holy Scriptures; but when our Saviour himself, in the relation of the parable of Dives and Lazarus, so peculiarly and emphatically points out the more especial favourites of Heaven; when he declares the widow's mite is the most acceptable offering to the treasury of the temple; and he adds to all this, the abundant testimony of his own example, we have no hesitation in saying that if there be one character among Christians of all others to be envied, it is that of the poor and suffering disciple of our Redeemer. He is but following the steps of his master; he is but enduring the scorns that he endured; he is but preparing himself to become a partaker of his master's glory.—Editor Morn. Chron.

DIED, during last week in Watertown Capt. JOHN GEORGE, aged 79; and in Marblehead, Capt. WM. CROWNINSHIELD aged 86; both worthies of the revolution; and both Pensioners under the immortal act of March 18, 1818.—It is estimated that since the above law passed, one tenth of the Patriot Heroes who obtained certificates under it, have departed to join their great leader WASHINGTON, and so receive their highest reward; and in a short time the prophetic spirit of the following stanzas will become history.

THE LAST VETERAN

OF THE REVOLUTION.

I saw the hoary warrior chief,
Whose sternly proud, but blighted form,
Proclaim'd him, whom with riving grief,
An oak amid the pelting storm.

Of those whose crimson tide embrued
The fields where Albion's glory fell;
Of those who oft undaunted stood,
When cannon peal'd the hero's knell—

He was the last—the only head
Was his, which wav'd with wintry bloom;
Surviving all, for all had sped—
They slept in honor's laurel'd tomb.

He gaz'd—alas! he gaz'd in vain,
To meet the comrades of his toil:
Co-patriots on the gory plain;
Companions in the victor spoil.

All, all around was sad and drear,
And nought could grief of years beguile;
For him condolence had no tear,
For him affection wore no smile.

I saw—and lo! the warrior slept;
The war-worn veteran join'd the brave;
The Genius of Columbia wept,
And Freedom's wreath bedeck'd his grave.

Pittsburgh Gazette

THURSDAY MORNING, MARCH 9, 1820.

The Missouri question has monopolized so much of the time and feelings of the house, that little else has been attended to. Our member, however, Mr. Baldwin, has been industriously engaged in devising means for the advancement of his favourite subject of manufactures. He has drafted, after immense labour, two bills which are intended to recollcile as far as possible the mercantile and manufacturing interests. They are framed with great judgment, & if they pass into laws, domestic fabrics will be as much cherished as the nature of the case will admit, more than we had any right to expect from the strong opposition which they have hitherto met from the commercial and agricultural communities. We have understood that many enlightened merchants have expressed themselves satisfied with these bills; for our part, however, we cannot help feeling very sceptical as to the success of our manufacturing project in Congress, at this particular crisis when sectional prejudices have been so highly excited by the taunts, sneers, sarcasms, and invective which have been so freely, we had almost said licentiously indulged in by both sides. We depended for success almost entirely upon the social feelings of the States; 'the mild milk of harmony' has been 'entirely dashed' from our councils, and we have every thing to fear. If any thing can be effected, we are satisfied it will be done; the powerful mind of Henry Baldwin is devoted with encreasing anxiety to bring about a state of things which may place the west on a basis of prosperity, which will prevent her from being dependant for happiness either on the caprice of the Atlantic seaboard, or upon the state of Europe.

Thomas Wilson, esq. late Cashier of the bank of Schuylkill, has been appointed cashier of the Bank of the United States, in the place of Jonathan Smith, esq. resigned. The office of cashier could not have devolved on a person of more acuteness, superior intelligence, or greater banking knowledge than Mr. Wilson. From a long personal acquaintance, with this gentleman, we can pronounce him one of the most decided advocates of internal enterprize. What, however, is most interesting to us in this appointment is, that the person selected to fill this important office is one who once was a citizen of Pittsburg, where he held the situation of cashier in the old branch of the Pennsylvania bank; he perfectly understands every thing connected with our situation & history, & as we are in some measure at present dependant on the Mother Bank, we are perfectly satisfied that no measures affecting our city particularly, will be adopted rashly, and that as far as Mr. Wilson's influence extends we may depend upon asystem being adopted as regards us, sound and judicious.

A BURNING MOUNTAIN.

A brilliant spectacle has been for many months past presented to the eyes of those who live nearly opposite to the lower glass works. One of the large coal pits from which this establishment received a por ion of its fuel is on fire, and a short time back was vomiting forth flames with all the sublimity of Vesuvius. During the day it is not observable from town, but as soon as night approaches it bursts upon the sight in all the steady blaze of the gas lights. How long it has been on fire we know not; it is only a few nights since our attention was called to it, but it is probable that it has been burning for many years. We remember to have heard it said the Coal hill was on fire twenty years ago; the probability is that it has never been extinguished; it never however has been so distinctly seen until since it has communicated to the open coal pit; this now displays walls and a roof of solid fire extending horizontally into the very bowels of the hill. An attempt we are told has been made to arrest the progress of this destructive conflagration by stopping up the mouth of the pit, but the attempt failed, owing we presume to the many fissures which exist in the rocks, through which air can enter. How it will terminate it is impossible to say, but a most deplorable destruction of the valuable article of coal must have already taken place; how far the loss has extended cannot be ascertained. Owing to the height and steepness of the hill the pit cannot be approached by any power sufficient to produce any effect, and we fear the only remedy we have to expect is the falling in of large masses of earth, rock and what the Colliers call horseback. However splendid and sublime the bursting of the flame from the hill of a dark night may be, reminding us of the classic fictions of the Titans breathing forth vengeance from beneath the mountains which had been heaped on them, it produces the melancholy reflection that an immense quantity of that article on which Pittsburgh depends for her preeminence, must be destroyed before the fire can cease from its ravages.

Revolution in Spain.—For the following late & highly interesting news from Spain, we are indebted to our very attentive Correspondent in Philadelphia. It will be seen that six thousand of the troops which had been ordered to South America, rose on the 3d of Jan. took possession of the King's Navy Yard, Forts, &c. pronouncing themselves the advance of 50,000 men, and declared their intention to take possession of Madrid, and restore the Cortes. The details furnished by our Correspondent, were brought by capt. Ramborger, of the ship Medora who in the night of the 5th, evaded the Embargo which had been laid at Cadiz, and who arrived at Philadelphia at two o'clock yesterday. The information is entitled to the fullest credit:

From our Correspondent.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 27,
Half past 2 o'clock.

Messrs. Lewis & Hall.

Capt. Ramborger has just landed from the ship Medora, from Cadiz. Extract from his journal:—Jan. 3, news was received at Cadiz, that part of the Spanish Army consisting of 6000 men, had taken possession of the Caraccas, (the King's Navy Yard,) and Isla after releasing the state prisoners, and putting one of them a Colonel, at the head of their forces. There was only one killed, a Captain of the Royalists, who opposed them at the Bridge of Isla—he was shot by the Colonel. Cadiz was put in as good a state of defence as possible—the gates all shut—no person allowed to leave the place—all stores shut, and great consternation—the streets patroled by the militia. At midnight, firing heard for more than 30 minutes outside. Jan 4th—this morning the gates shut; the first, commanding the road to Cadiz, has been attacked by 500 men; but they were repulsed with the loss of seven killed. At noon the gates were opened—but all communication is cut off with the interior. All kinds of provision raised 50 per cent. The Great Continental Mail with the English letters, was stopped this day by the National Troops (as they style themselves,) and destroyed. A flag has been sent to them—they say, do not interfere with us and Cadiz shall not be molested; we are only the advance of FIFTY THOUSAND, we are on the march for MADRID and want the Cortes restored—that we will not embark for South America, and want our pay. This afternoon the men of war bent their sails—the gun-boats are all manned and stationed at Fort Puntal. The national troops, sailors and marines had that day been paid their arrears, with a pro, mise if faithful, to be paid every month. The provisions were landed from the transports this day, and stored in Cadiz. Jan. 5th, Sevilia, Porto Real, Porto Santo and all the adjacent towns, are in possession of the National Troops. All the vessels are embargoed, and no pilots permitted to leave the city. Last night the state prisoners in the Castle made their escape, and joined the National Troops; and this night I have made my escape in the good ship Medora.

ROBBERY OF THE MAIL.

From the Charleston Courier of Wednesday last, received by the George-Henry, captain Hamlin, arrived at this port yesterday, in three days and a half from Charleston.

CHARLESTON, Feb. 23.

The Southern post came in yesterday morning without the mail. A letter from one of the contractors, to T. W. Bacot, esq. Postmaster of this city, dated 'Bees Creek, near Coosawhatchie, 21st inst.' says:—'I have a most lamentable occurrence to state, which is, that the mail was stolen from the sulkey this morning, about 4 o'clock, while the driver was changing his horses, thirteen miles below this place. It was cut off, as the mark of the knife is visible on one the fastenings. I shall use all my endeavours for its recovery. My stage containing three passengers, upset in a creek the night previous to the robbery, which caused the sulkey to be used on the route last night.'

Mr. Bacot immediately issued a hand bill, offering a reward of $100 for the detection of the perpetrators of the robbery.

Extract of a letter dated Havana, Feb. 16, 1820

"I cannot close this letter without informing you that we have here two English brigs of war; and our little pop-gun schooner Hornet, Lieut. Ramage, of six nine pounders. One of the brigs fell into the old trick of impressing, by sending his boat on board the schr Sarah and Louisa, of Baltimore, and taking out a sailor. I cannot enter into the whole detail of the affair, but suffice it to say that Lieut. Ramage immediately took it up in a gentlemanly, firm and truly officer-like manner, such as characterize the noble sons of Columbia's gallant little navy, and after much correspondence has completely gained his point. The reply of the governor to his official report of the occurrence is very handsome. John Bull's replies being somewhat irrelevant and evasive, Ramage gave him twelve hours for his categorical answer—whether he would or would not give up the man—the reply is satisfactory. The Wasp is the English brig's name, Capt. Carter. Our officers were determined if official means did not answer, to make the affair a personal one, as they are all resolved to do on every occasion, until old John desists from his insults.

BANK OF THE UNITED STATES.

This morning the Board of Directors of this institution, elected Thomas Wilson, Esq. (Cashier of the Schuylkill Bank) Cashier of the Bank of the United States, in the room of Jonathan Smith, Esq. resigned.

We understand that the salaries of all the officers of the Bank have been reduced at the rate of 20 per cent, and that nine clerks have been dismissed. This surely looks like retrenchment.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 24.

We understand that from the reduction of salaries of the officers and clerks of the Bank of the United States in this city and the dismissal of supernumerary clerks, there will be a saving to the institution, of upwards of $20,000 a year Fr. Gaz.

The Planters in the vicinity of Savannah, it is stated, have established depots of rice, corn &c. where the distressed citizens can obtain it "without money and without price.

The bill for granting $10,000 to the sufferers by the late fire at Savannah, has passed the senate and house of representatives of Pennsylvania, and only wants the signature of the governor to become a law.

The bill by which the United States Branch banks in Kentucky, are outlawed passed the house of Representatives of that state 59 to 22, on the 4th inst.

An act has passed both branches of the Kentucky Legislature, repealing all the Charters of the Independent Banks in that state, from and after the 1st of May—they are allowed to do no other business than the winding up their concerns, and this they are enjoined to perform on or before the 1st of January, 1823.

Phil. Gaz.

A letter dated Washington City, Feb 21. says—It is understood that despatches received from Madrid announce, that the Spanish government has refused all further correspondence with Mr. Forsyth. Gen. Vives was in Paris in December on his way to the U. States.

Treasury of Virginia—The committee appointed by the Legislature of Virginia to examine the accounts of the late Treasurer of that state, made a detailed report on Friday last. The result of the whole is, that the entire deficit, so far as is now ascertained, amounts to one hundred and twenty two thousand, three hundred and seventy one dollars, and eighty six cents!

Kentuchy.—Among the acts of the Kentucky legislature that are not merely anomalous, but of a very important character, is a late one repealing the charters of all the independent banks in the state. The banks are limited to do business until the first of May, and are to close all their concerns before the 1st of Jan. 1823. We are told that another act outlaws the branches of the United States Bank, but the act is not before us, and we cannot vouch for this.—Phil. Union.

From the Franklin Gazette.

Letters from Washington to the Editors state, that on Friday, the question to restrict slavery in Missouri, was carried in committee of the whole, by a majority of several votes. On Saturday, Mr. Randolph made a speech of five hours, after the Speaker resumed the chair, against the restriction. He was eccentric, wandering and out of order, in the course of his remarks. The Speaker had to check him once or twice. The debate would be continued on Monday.

The Alexandria Gazette says, "We are informed that the Chevalier de Onis is appointed His Catholick Majesty's Ambassador to the Court of Russia."

CALAMITOUS ACCIDENT.

We learn with extreme regret that the steam boat Perseverance, belonging to J. H. Piatt and James Kirby of this place, was destroyed by fire on Friday morning last, about two miles above Madison.—The fire is supposed to have originated from a stove, which unfortunately communicated with some bales of cotton and a quantity of tanners oil, placed below. Such was the rapidity of the flames, that in despite of every effort, she sunk within half an hour after the fire commenced. Most of the passengers were compelled to flee without being able to save any part of their baggage or property. Fifteen hundred dollars in United States' paper the property of capt. Kirby, was also consumed. The cargo of the Perseverance, amounting to about 35 tons, was owned by the merchants of Cincinnati; and principally consisting of groceries, must have been of great value.

A MYSTERIOUS CIRCUMSTANCE.

Was found, a dark brown mare with a large star in her face, in the shape of a diamond; one half of her nigh hind foot white, about one inch up of the hair above the hoof, half round the hoof, white on the same foot; newly shod all round with riding shoes, and frost nails in the shoes; she had a small sore on her back, apparently made with the saddle—no other particular marks. She was found by Philip Quin on the 27th of January last, in a very remote place in St. Clair township, Columbiana county, and state of Ohio, on the west side of Little Beaver creek, not far from Beaver factory. She was examined by Joseph M'Laughlin & others, and found to be killed. She was tied to a small spruce about one inch & one quarter in diameter, with a cord about as thick as a bed cord round the neck, in a spruce thicket and on the brink of a great precipice, where no person ever could have found her if the dogs and foxes had not been traced to and from the spot. We found a vast quantity of blood in the snow at the root of the bush which she was tied to; and upon examination, we discovered the hole where the large vein of her neck was cut open with a knife by the person who butchered her. She was middling large and in tolerable good order.

Mr. Printer, we wish you to insert this in your paper, and other printers through the states, to see if any owner can be found; for we think that the owner has shared the same fate with the mare.

☞ The publishers of newspapers in this and the adjoining states are respectfully requested to give the above at least one insertion, and thereby aid in the detection of a robbery and murder, which appears to have been committed on a traveller, as the mare above alluded to was not owned in this part of the country.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

On motion, the report of the committee appointed to inquire into the conduct of the governor was read a second time, and the resolution thereto attached being under consideration, a motion was made by Mr. Randall and Mr. Blunt to postpone the original resolution for the purpose of introducing a substitute. A division of this question was called for by Mr. Brewster to end with postponing.—And on the question will the house agree to postpone the original resolution, a motion was made to postpone the question together with the original and substitute until Tuesday the 29th inst. which was agreed to.

TUESDAY, FEB. 29.

The House resumed the consideration of the report of the committee, &c. and substitute, and the question recurring, will the house agree to postpone the original resolution. The yeas on that question were 24, nays 70—So it was determined in the negative. The question was then taken on agreeing to the resolution attached to the report of the committee—yeas 62 nays 31. So it was determined in the affirmative.

W. & R. LECKY'S

SUPERIOR EXTRA PATENT

PLOUGHS

Warranted equal to any ever made in the United States.

In pointing out the advantages of the Ploughs over those generally termed 'Peacock's Patent Ploughs,' the subscribers assure the public that they are not actuated by any motives of jealousy or hostility to the persons who have, as they themselves state, purchased the rights for a 'valuable consideration.' But when on a fair trial, the superiority of their Ploughs has been so generally acknowledged by practical farmers, and from the very rapid sale they have met with, they are induced to prefer their claim to precedence.

Because—Their ploughs have a whole share and landside with a socket, made of wrought iron and steel, which prevents the necessity of a number of screws and bolts, which impede the operation of the ploughs by catching roots, grass, &c.

Because—They are so constructed, that any of the irons may be separately taken to a smith's shop for repair, without the necessity, as in case of 'Peacock's Patents,' of taking the whole plough to the shop.

Because—They are more simple in their construction, and less liable to be out of repair.

The ploughs will all be branded with the names of the subscribers, and warranted, and a general assortment of the various sizes always on hand. Also on hand, a quantity of IRONS and CASTINGS, which will be sold on moderate terms, and instructions given (gratis) to such persons as may wish to make the wood work of their own ploughs.

As the proprietors of 'Peacock's Patents,' wish to deter the public from purchasing what they call 'half patents,' in allusion as we believe to those made by the subscribers, under the penalties of the law for every infringement, we deem it proper to state, that those who are disposed to purchase from us will be indemnified, in any security they demand, from the threats thus improperly held out.

Their ploughs are always made of the best materials, and of well seasoned wood.

They still carry on the COACH & WAGGON making business, at their old stand in Wood st. corner of Virgin alley.

TOWN OF ALEXANDRIA.

THE undersigned, owner of a large number of squares, half squares, and lots in the above town, and of about five hundred acres of land adjoining to it, proposes to sell to actual settlers, any number of lots, not exceeding one hundred; and several out lots of twenty acres each, on terms highly calculated to promote the interest of the purchasers. He is also authorized to sell on liberal terms and in small tracts, seven thousand acres of excellent land, lying about the Town and in its immediate neighborhood.

This town is situated in the fork of the Ohio and Mississippi, on the bank of the former, and on the first piece of high ground above their junction.

No person of any reflection has ever looked upon a map of North America without being struck with the mighty confluence of water which is exhibited at the junction of the Ohio and Mississippi: and the natural sentiment that a great city must grow up at that point has only been checked by the apprehension that the place was annually inundated. The apprehension was incorrect. The town scite and the back country are free from inundation, and both are now settled and are constantly increasing in population. The town has been selected for the seat of Justice for the county of Alexander in which it is situated, and both the county and circuit courts are, and will be held there. The neighboring country is well settled, not by a detached population, but by connected settlements spreading into the interior of the state of Illinois.

The mind is therefore free to expatiate upon the advantages of this situation, and the undersigned can leave it to any man of sense and candor to say whether any point upon our continent has ever presented a fairer prospect of a greater inland commercial city?

Situated on the first high ground above the confluence of the noblest streams in America—at a point from which large steam boats can at all times descend to New Orleans—with a rich back country to support it—and a numerous population now covering the adjacent country, and it is difficult to assign a reason why this town should not in a few years rank with the first in America.

Besides its water communications it may reasonably count upon the advantage of seeing pass through it the great road which will be required to facilitate the intercourse between the Upper and the Lower Mississippi. Authentic information authorizes the assertion that the country south of the Ohio is entirely practicable for a road, which can be opened across the west ends of Kentucky and Tennessee through the late Chickasaw purchase and lead to New Orleans over a direct route parallel to the course of the Mississippi.

The undersigned will be upon the spot to sell to actual settlers during the balance of the winter and spring months. He prefers to sell upon the spot, when purchasers can see with their own eyes the advantages of the situation, and therefore will be present at a time when the revival of commerce upon the river and the passing of steam boats will make it convenient for all those to visit the place and examine it for themselves who may wish to become interested in it.

He is also authorised to say that the proprietors, or a part of them, will sell at auction, on the ground, on the third Monday in April next, being the first day of the Circuit court, ONE HUNDRED LOTS; one third of the purchase money to be paid in hand, one third in six, and one in twelve months, to raise a fund for improving the place, to which the whole proceeds of the 100 lots will be applied.
